American Airlines Pilot Captain Robert Snow Has Post Vaccine Cardiac Arrest 6 Minutes After Landing Airbus Twin Jet Airliner AAL 1067 at Dallas Airport

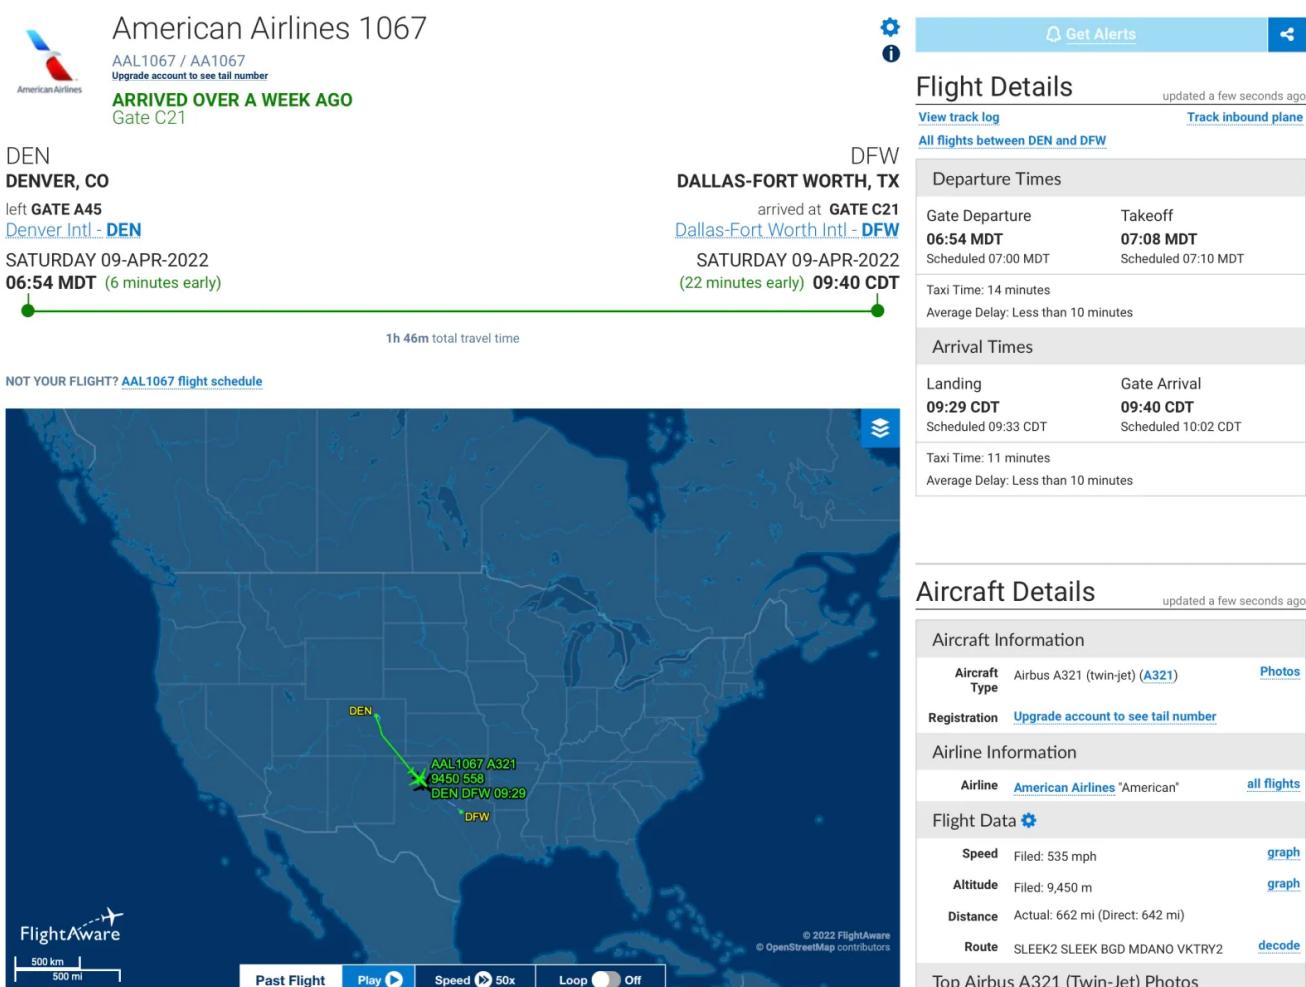

Published 19 April 2022 • Updated 26 May 2022 • 5 min read

On April 9th 2022, American Airlines Pilot Captain Robert Snow suffered a cardiac arrest minutes after landing flight AAL 1067^{fn} at Dallas Fort Worth International Airport.

Snow with 31 years of flight service, was mandated to take the Covid-19 "vaccine" on November 7th 2021 or lose his job.

The Airbus A321 twin jet airliner had departed from Denver International with almost 200 passengers onboard.

After landing at Gate 6 at DFW, Captain Snow suffered a post vaccination cardiac arrest. Had it happened six minutes earlier, it would have been a mass casualty disaster.

FAA Violating Own Do Not Fly 61.53 Regulation

The Federal Aviation Authority is tasked with safety risk management for US air travel. To "provide the safest, most efficient aerospace system in the world".

The FAA has violated its own Do-Not-Fly regulation 61.53^{fn fn} by allowing pilots to operate commercial aircraft after being injected with a non FDA approved medical product.

FAA CFR-2014 14-Vol2-Sec 61-53.pdf • 115 KB

Joshua Yoder from US Freedom Flyers estimates 30% of pilots may need to be disqualified due to Covid-19 vaccine injuries. He has called for immediate actions to be taken by the US airline industry:

1. An immediate halt to all mandates.
2. Medically retest all vaccinated pilots.
3. Certify only those who can show clean EKGs and cardiac MRIs to prove heart health.
4. D-Dimer tests to observe any micro blood clotting.

Yoder was interviewed by Steve Kirsch who is investigating the rise in all cause mortality in the vaccinated. Kirsch, along with his family, took the Covid-19 "vaccine".

Captain Snow has since spoken to Steve Kirsch about his serious vaccine injury, the interview, can be seen here.

Clear reporting of Covid-19 vaccine injuries and fatalities in aviation sectors will effect everyone booking a flight for themselves or family. But it is not in the interests of corporations and governments.

Not one representative from American Airlines has visited Captain Robert Snow in the hospital. Their headquarters in Fort Worth, Texas is less than 30 minutes drive away.

Their Chairman Doug Parkerfn, CEO Robert Isomfn nor any of the 10 strong Senior Leadership Team at American Airlines have visited or called their pilot to find out what happened and how he is doing.

Other than flying Captain Snow's family into Dallas, American Airlines have kept all contact to a minimum. Perhaps Captain Snow will be contacted by American Airlines' Survivors Network EBRGfn?

Mark Quigley and Jessica Tasetano lead the Survivors Network EBRG that provides support for employees who have been through, or currently going through a life-threatening/life-altering experience.

Similar incidents such as Agricultural Pilot Cody Flint (with over 10,000 flights hours experience) who suffered a blackout whilst flying, had no recollection of landing his aircraft, openly discussed the loss of his health and career post-vaccination in sworn testimony.

I recommend watching Captain Latane Campbell, a Pilot for a large American Airliner interview with Kirsch, recorded in January 2022. He shared the consensus view of 100 other commercial pilots on the Covid-19 "vaccines" and mandated policies.

One wonders how colleagues of Captain Robert Snow must feel, knowing that the world's most used search engine has since, spent more time deleting news of the near fatal incident from US and UK indexed results?

A further search using: AAL 1067 (flight number), heart attack, Gate 6, Denver to Texas and April 9 2022 (the date) retrieved the following:

The screenshot shows a Google News interface. The search bar at the top contains the query "AAL 1067 flight pilot heart attack Gate 6 from Denver to Texas April 9 2022". Below the search bar, the main content area displays the message "No results found." To the left, a sidebar lists several news categories: "Top stories", "For you", "Following", "News Showcase", "Saved searches", "COVID-19", "United Kingdom", "World", and "Your local news". On the right, there is a small search results box with the same query and a "Save" button.

Perhaps the Alphabet Mafia's search engine cannot be trusted?

A third search including the pilots' name, likely unknown to the general public, but with colleagues and other pilots who took the Covid-19 gene altering "vaccine", who may be running a search: Captain Robert Snow, heart attack, cardiac arrest, April 9 2022 and the airport's abbreviated name, DFW.

I included heart attack as sometimes journalists mis-use the term to describe a cardiac arrest, though they mean different conditions. A heart attack is when blood flow to the heart is blocked.

A cardiac arrest is much worse. The victim's heartbeat stops abruptly and unexpectedly due to an abnormal heart rate or arrhythmia. They will have little or no fore-warning, lose consciousness and collapse.

Perhaps American Airlines, who operate in a highly competitive, small profit margin aviation sector, survived lockdowns by receiving some of the rampant money printing? Non-compliance would have put them out of business.

How Captain Robert Snow, his family and colleagues must feel about how his cardiac arrest, which could have taken 200 lives, is scrubbed from online existence?

“Is it worth continuing to work for this employer?” “What else could Google be hiding from me?” are questions worth contemplating.

Every Cloud...

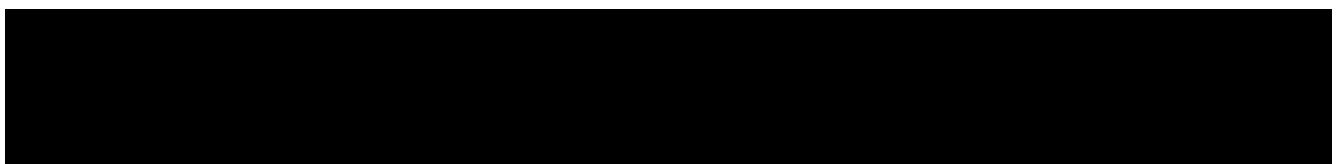

One sector enjoying growth is the private jet market, very popular with corporates and diplomats who do not adhere to travel lockdowns, CDC mask mandates and "vaccine" guidelines.

Privatefly run a personalised private jet for hire business in the UK, US and mainland Europe, saw a 258% increasefn in sales from 2021 alone.

Update: 15th May 2022

Captain Robert Snow Speaks out about his Vaccine Injury

Steve Kirsch followed up with Captain Snow, in which he explained how close the plane was to having a serious mid-air catastrophe.

American Airlines headquarters is not 30 minutes from the hospital Captain Snow's was taken. It is around 10 minutes. So far, no senior member of American Airlines nor their "survivors netork" have contacted their pilot.

Captain Snow now must wear an automatic external defibrillator to monitor his heart.

“The thing that concerns me, is [that] this happened in the right place at the right time. Because if it had happened ... any other time where I was either alone or beyond reasonable response time for a medical response, I wouldn’t be here having this conversation.”

The Times reports that attorney John Pierce Law is suing 18 major airlines, including American Airlines.fn His suit focuses on the alleged unconstitutionality of the vaccine mandates imposed on airline employees.
